Looks like I have a quote for the next podcast intro. Great work with this, Patrick.

Thanks Adam – that really means a lot.

Awesome Patrick! You should send this to Seth, he would live it!

I tweeted him and tagged on Facebook. I wondered if he would find it, but no response yet.

I love this. It is completely inspirational. I love "average work". The concept of humility is an on going topic of discussion with my artist friends. Approach is everything. Thanks so much.

Thank you!

So many in so few, and so deep and so easy to see what many times isn't so clear! I loved this work!

That awesome, the idea was conveyed so beautifully. I loved it.

Thanks so much for putting this profound idea into visual language! This is a vital point – that you have to be patient to connect with your audience. I often feel alone and I'm told (when people look at my work), "that's too 'intense' for me," but actually I've stopped taking that as rejection and now feel that it is a sign that I'm doing something that touches a nerve. That's what I want...and eventually, if my work is worth anything, it will find an audience or an audience will find it.

Nice one, I quite liked it and I agree. Write from the bottom of your heart, stay true to yourself and remember that the first person you must please with the story you write is yourself. Cool!

I like the idea. we just have to work to pleas our selves.

I love the message.

Mediocre appeals more to the masses.

Not everyone "gets it".

Sometimes I (we) are part of the "it" crowd and sometimes I (we) are part of the "masses"
